About me

Ziqi Xie is a Ph.D. candidate in economics at Tulane University, New Orleans, LA. He has a research interest in public economics, corporate finance, and health economics. Currently, he is researching dividend tax policy changes and VAT policy in China by using a variety of econometric models, including difference-in-differences, propensity score/k-NN matching, etc.

Besides research, Ziqi enjoys playing basketball, traveling, and photographing. He played as small forward at Tulane Intramural - Chinese Basketball Team during 2015-2017.

Prior to coming to Tulane, Ziqi studied in Shanghai and Boston. He held B.A. and M.A. in economics from Shanghai Ocean University and Northeastern University, respectively.
